Oregon school shooting: Collection of guns, knives found in home of Reynolds High shooter Jared Padgett

Jared Padgett, the 15-year-old who opened fire in the boys locker room at Reynolds High School last week, apparently used his brother's M4 AR-15 rifle after taking it from the bedroom that both shared at home, court documents released Thursday indicate.

Padgett also was able to choose from an assortment of other weapons and ammunition tucked away in closets and under beds in the family's Troutdale house before he fatally shot another student, grazed a teacher and then killed himself.

In addition to the rifle, Padgett selected a semi-automatic handgun, nine magazines capable of carrying hundreds of rounds of ammunition and a large knife to bring with him on the school bus.

The documents don't answer key questions, including how that rifle was stored and how Jared Padgett got to it.

Police didn't seize gun safes or make reference to them in the list of property taken from the home. But Lucas Padgett told investigators that he had
